

Mediocre Sunset

I prefer sunsets that aren't spectacular. They always put me in awe of nature but try to fool me into thinking they will always be super special. Nothing is always super special. Things are mostly mediocre. Daily life is mediocre. Meals are mediocre unless you can afford the real expensive ingredients all the time....and who can do that? Not me. So when I look at the sky with the sun setting I want to see some grey clouds. I want a few birds, preferably sea gulls. I don't want a flock of starlings doing their group consciousness ballet dance. This way I'll be happier tomorrow when I see mediocre again. I won't have expectations and I won't be disappointed.
