

To Jam or Not to Jam

to jam or not to jam....that is the question.....

should one decide to jam, one takes the risk of falling flat on one's creative face.....

however...should one decide not to jam, one will never experience the sublime magic of creating something wonderful from nothing at all.....

as an artist, it is obvious.....one must jam....

one must jam to nourish one's soul.....

one must jam and put him or herself out on a musical ledge of uncertainty and jump into the unknownwithout a parachute or safety net.....

setting fear aside, we explore the vast galaxies of sound with only our imagination to guide us.....

as an explorer, it is obvious.....one must jam one must jam to discover new continents of creativity or forever be stranded on the shores of mediocrity watching one sunset after the other and never seeing past the horizon