

Victoria

The scaffolding clinging to the new condo building looked like torn mesh nylons on a Government St. hooker. Cheap and glitzy but still overpriced.....the condos that is. As for the hookers, there's an abundance of those too. The housing crisis, cost of living crisis and every other crisis has forced people on to the street. You would think that tent cities popping up like poisonous mushrooms on the lawn beside the tennis courts would bring the inflated house prices down but that is not the case.

Victoria....you've lost your innocence and there's no turning back.....and why would you want to? You're on the fast track to everywhere. Garden city to modern metropolis in ten years flat. Opposites attract.
